Focus on Teaching - May 2021

As we transition out of exams and inch closer to summer, we encourage you to reflect on the past semester and celebrate the successes of the last year. We have been delighted to hear from many of you about new ways you have found to connect with students and offer meaningful support to colleagues through these ever-changing challenges.

Do be sure to make note of our upcoming programs and workshops. May and June are busy for CELT and we have some new opportunities this year, accessible from wherever you are working (as long as there's internet access).

Lastly, regular readers may have noticed our new look! Thanks to Marketing & Communications for helping us with the (virtual) spring cleaning.

COVID-19 Safety on Campus

Our top priority is your safety and that of our TRU community. Visit TRU's COVID-19 Response website to keep yourself up to date.

Professional Development

New! CRICKET Digital Makerspace Series
Thursday, May 6, 2-4 p.m. FULL (waitlist available)

Session #1: Create a Class Debate Activity

Come create a debate! You will walk away with a ready-made debate for your course at the end of this makerspace workshop. The debate maximizes the best of online and blended learning. Students achieve critical thinking skills as they move through research, debate and reflection stages. This is learning through fun! Adaptable to any discipline, we empower you to create each phase of this learning activity. We also share 'lessons learned' insights from pilot testing and the pedagogy supporting debates. Register here - FULL, waitlist available.

Interculturalizing the Curriculum
May 11-28, Tuesdays and Fridays

Since 2008, The Centre for Excellence in Learning and Teaching has offered a unique and intensive professional development opportunity for faculty members to enhance culturally responsive teaching strategies and incorporate intercultural learning outcomes in curriculum. Over 100 faculty from 18 departments have completed the program; they have enhanced their teaching and confidence working with culturally diverse learners, revised curricula, initiated SoTL projects, presented at conferences, and published in education journals.

Participants in the program will:

- Apply intercultural development theories to their own and students' development
- Review cultural values dimensions related to learning and teaching in diverse contexts
- Reflect on settler/Indigenous relations
- Consider strategies for facilitating multicultural group work
- Develop learning outcomes, assessments, and learning activities to support intercultural learning for all students
- Become part of an interdisciplinary community of practice at TRU and beyond

For more information, visit Intercultural Learning at TRU, or email intercultural@tru.ca.

Course (Re)Design Institute

Paced (over 5 weeks), May 17-June 16
Intensive (5 days), June 21-June 25

Working on a new course or tweaking an existing one?

Join either this five-week, paced workshop, or five-day intensive workshop to map course concepts, connect learning outcomes, practice new instructional techniques, and develop activities and assessment strategies for your students. We'll use the time-tested process outlined in the 2004 book "Rethinking Teaching in Higher Education" by Saroyan and Amundsen to help you prepare your course. You'll explore course (re)design options through reflection, facilitated discussion, and peer feedback and at the end of the workshop you will be prepared to teach!

Paced: Each week will require a total time commitment of 8 hours to complete all of the activities. Two synchronous group sessions per week will be scheduled, but you will be able to schedule partnered work and individual work. Register here.

Intensive: Monday to Friday, 9 a.m.-5 p.m. Register here.

CELTalk: It Takes A Village: How Faculty Connections Support Student Learning in the ESTR Program During and After A Pandemic

Tuesday, May 18, Noon-1 p.m. via Teams

Christina Cederlof, Melissa Svendsen, Matthew Stranach, Carolyn Ives, and Brenna Clarke Gray

Q: What do an ESTR Instructor, a Reference Librarian, Coordinators of Educational Technologies and Innovation, and a Coordinator of Learning and Faculty Development have in common?

A: A deep commitment to student learning!

As with most programs at TRU, the ESTR students made the shift to online learning and were unable to do their fall in-community practica: instead, they engaged in skill development in their safety bubble. To broaden and enrich these experiences, small groups of students and their instructor had regular, structured consultations with a Reference Librarian. These sessions were, like all of the other content from the course, delivered virtually. While the technology and design of the course were ultimately the responsibility of the instructor, the development of both were supported and facilitated by the faculty development opportunities and one-on-one support offered by Educational Technology Coordinators and a Coordinator from TRU's Centre for Excellence in Learning and Teaching (CELT). In this session, we will share how our individual contributions built a whole that was greater than the sum of its parts. Then, we will explore how to preserve the best of our discoveries and learnings from this past year and ask: How we can hold on to the good things from this year as we prepare for a return to campus? Register here.

TRU Faculty in Action

A Digital Citizenship Collaboration — Inclusion in Action!

Featuring: Christina Cederlof, EDSW in BCcampus News

In May 2020 a group of adult special education (ASE) instructors who were meeting regularly online as a community of practice brought together by the British Columbia

Council on Admissions and Transfer mused over the idea of bringing all their students together, just like they were meeting together in that moment.

Cascade Journal of Knowledge

The Cascade Journal of Knowledge disseminates knowledge (open-access) from scholars and enhances the scholarship of teaching and learning. The journal achieves this through a unique and innovative journal format: scholars submit a screen-cast/video/podcast (3-8 minutes) of an academic topic that is double-blind peer-reviewed. This year you may be interested in creating a screen-cast, podcast, or video assignment with your students!
